with coastal nations given jurisdiction over an extended belt of territorial and exclusive economic zone. The fisheries and other economic interests which navigation entails a high sea freedom beyond the territorial sea. In so doing the Convention has implemented the responsibility doctrine imposed on both boats and was achieved a true maritime freedom. Further, the Convention stipulates navigational rules through the modernization of the regime of innocent passage as provided in the 1958 Geneva Convention and adopted important new regime of transit passage for international straits to address the
